Product Description

Control system: The computerized control system automates the operation, enabling precise management of the entire process, from batching to mixing. It can be operated in automatic or manual mode, providing flexibility to operators.

Conveying system: The belt conveyor transports aggregates from the storage bins to the mixer, ensuring smooth, continuous material flow. This system is designed for reliability and reduces material wastage during transportation.

Cement and water storage: The plant typically includes cement silos for storage and dosing, along with a water tank to control the moisture content of the mix, contributing to the quality and strength of the concrete.

Modular design: The HZS75 mixing plant features a modular structure, making it easy to assemble, disassemble, and relocate. This flexibility is particularly useful in projects that require moving the plant to different job sites.

Energy efficiency and durability: The design incorporates energy-efficient components, ensuring minimal power consumption. The plant is also built with robust materials for longevity and durability in harsh working environments. The HZS75 mixing plant is ideal for contractors seeking a reliable and efficient concrete production solution that meets medium-scale project requirements.
