HZS25 Bucket Type Batching Plant

Brief Introduction:

Stationary concrete batching plant is widely used for small or medium-scale building construction, bridge and road construction, and prefabrication of concrete products. It has the advantages of less land occupancy, quick installation and convenient transportation.

Features:

- 1.This bucket type concrete mixing plant adopts twin shaft concrete mixer, it is with strong mixing power, high mixing evenness and high productivity.
- 2.The mixing blade and liner is made by high wearing-resistance chromium-manganese alloy, which is more durable with long lift span.
- 3.The PLD series aggregates batching machine have accumulated weighing or pneumatic independent weighing system for options.
- 4.The electronic weighting system has a buffer device and automatic volume compensation with high accuracy.
- 5.The complete set concrete batching plant use full auto control models by computer or full auto SIMENS PLC+PC model, meanwhile, we have PLC semi-auto control system or manual control system for options.

Key Features:

Bucket Feeding System: The plant utilizes a bucket system to feed aggregates and other materials into the weighing hoppers, ensuring precise and consistent batching.

Twin-Shaft Mixer: A high-efficiency twin-shaft mixer ensures thorough mixing of all ingredients, resulting in a homogeneous concrete mix with excellent properties.

Weighing System: Accurate weighing systems for aggregates, cement, water, and additives guarantee precise dosing and consistent concrete quality.

Control Panel: A user-friendly control panel provides easy operation and monitoring of the entire batching process.

Modular Design: The plant's modular design allows for easy installation and transportation, making it suitable for various site conditions.

Applications:

The HZS25 batching plant is perfect for projects such as residential housing construction, small roadworks, precast concrete production, and more. It is also an excellent choice for contractors seeking a cost-effective and efficient solution for on-site concrete production.

Compact yet powerful, the HZS25 batching plant delivers exceptional performance, making it a trusted option for construction professionals worldwide.
